LOVE AND JEALOUSY.

A Jilted Shoe Merchant Kills His False Fair and Himself.

TWO THROATS CUT.

An Exciting Scene of Blood and Death in a Pennsylvania Village.

CALEDONIA, Pa., June 23, 1876. Three years ago a man named Dolson Hicks opened a shoo shop in this viilage, and cutered the family of James Shapland as a boarder. Being an intelligent and amiable man he became quite a favorite in the place, lespite the fact that he was addicted to periodical spells drinking, during which he was boisterous, but con ildered harmless. About eighteen months ago Mr. ihapland died, leaving a widow and one child, a boy our years old. Mrs. Shapland was a prepossessing soman of thirty, of irreproachable character. Hicks continued to board with her, and a few months since, se promising to quit his occasional drinking, the two were engaged to be married, the widow being with meagro means and Hicks being prosperous in his business. There had come to the village shortly after the death of Shapland a young blacksmith named William Cochran.. He went to work in Smith's blacksmit's shop, and also found a boarding place with Mrs. Shapland. From the ime of Cochran's entrance into the family Hicks became jealous of him, and two months ago, during a conversation with Mrs. Shapland, of which the blacksmith as the subject, the widow casually remarked that she thought Cochran was as fine a man as she ever met. This made Hicks angry and he went off and got drunk and after his apree was over Mrs. Shapland told him that the relations existing between himself and ber

Since the marriage nothing unusual was noticed in the manner of Hicks, aithough it was expected that he would drink harder than ever, as he was known to passionately love the woman he was to marry. Yesterday afternoon he put a keen edge on a long bladed shee knife, and told a man who was working for him that he had promised to trim some bushes for a lafy down town and that he would not be back to the shop that afternoon. He then went out. About three o'clock Hicks entered the blacksmith shop where Cochran works, which is about a quarter of a mile from the latter's house. In his right hand he had the shoc knife, which was red with blood. He pointed to Cochran and said :-

"You are a widower and "I AM A MURDERER!"

Cochran exclaimed, "My God! he's murdered my

There were no signs of a struggle, although there were blood marks in two or three places about e room. Dr. Hamilton was sent for, and then Coch ran and others started after Hicks, who had been left alone in the blacksmith shop. They found him walk ing excitedly about the shop. Cochran setzed a sledge tammer, and would have crushed the murderer to leath but for the interference of the crowd. Hicks begged them to into custody and locked up in a room in Nivers'

"He said he and the deceased had been engaged to be married for several months and she had lailed to keep her promise. The fact that he was to have married Mrs. Shapland was well known and Since SHE HAD JILTED HIN he had been riducided and troubled with it. This so annoyed and enraged nim that he determined to take her life. Four times before the istal day he had started on his murderous errand, but always backed out. When he left his shop in the atternoon ne went directly to the residence of the deceased. He met her little boy on the steps, who told him his morher was in. Hicks went in and found Mrs. Cochran sewing. She arose when he entered, and told him to take a chair. He walked up to her and said:—

"Phebe, you have made a madman of me."

She replied that she was sorry if she had injured him, but that he was as much to blame as herself. He theu drew the knile from his pocket. She stepped back a step, but befere she could make an outcry he threw pears me a cound her and heid her while he drew the

Her little boy entered as the deed was completed. Hicks then lett the house, and went to the shop and teld Cohran what he had done. Hicks said, with much vehemence:—

"I had to kill her. Something pressed me on to the deed and I had to do it. I would do it even to-morrow. I am not crazy, but killed the only woman I ev# loved deliberately and designedly, i want to suffer the couse-quences."

populace had been restrained from lynching him, he said:—

"I am sorry they were prevented."

After the inquest, at which hicks was present and prenounced the testimony all correct, the murderer was piaced in the castedy of two constables and was taken up-atairs to prepare for his journey to jain, some thirty miles. One of the officers stayed with the prisper while the other went out to make arrangements for the conveyance. About ten minutes afterward the former came rushing down stairs shouting for Dr. Hamilton, and announcing that Hicks had:

CUT EIS OWN THINGAT.

A rush was at once made for the room where the prisoner was. He was on his knees by the bed, on the edge of which his head was lying, while blood was streaming from a wound in his throat. The right carotid artery, the common jugular vein and the traches were found severed, and the injury was at once pronounced istail by the doctor.

The officer said he had gone to a window to look out while Hicks was washing his bands on the other side of the room. Suddenly he heard a fall and a peculiar gurgling sound, and, looking around, saw thicks on the floor, with his pocket kinfe is his hand. The blood was gushing from his throat. Before the constable could reach him Hicks indicted another wound in his beck. The weapon with which the wounds were made was a large pocketking, having a blade four inches long Hicks did not speak after being placed in the bed, and died in a few minutes.

weapon with which the wounds were made was a large pocketknite, having a blade four inches long. Hicks did not speak after being placed in the bed, and died in a few minutes.

It is impossible to describe the scene in this village following the murder and its tragic sequel. Business was entirely suspended and the streets were filled with people wild with excitement. The house of the murdered woman was surrounded until ato last night by an excited throng, as was the tavern containing the body of the murderer and suited. Hicks was buried to day in a lot he pwined on the outskirts of the village. He was about thirty years of age, an Englishman, and had no relatives in this country. Notwithstanding the terrible crime of which he was guilty there are not wanting many who sympathize with the unfortunate man.

Mrs. Coentran is to be buried to morrow. Her husband is almost insane over her untimely death. The whole aftair is one that has cast a gloom over the village and surrounding country, where all the parties are known and beloved for their many excellent qualities.

AN ARKANSAS TRAGEDY.

[From the Little Rock Gazette, June 20.]
Yesterday, about four o'clock P. M., Coroner Howe was notified that a subject for inquest was lying at the railroad boarding house of S. McNeil, in Baring Cross, opposite the foot of Games street. Crossing the river the following facts were elicited :-

Kennedy and Patrick Hester, were drinking somewhat to excess on Sunday alternoon and had some words, during which Kennedy applied to Hester an opprobrious epithet. Friends interfered and the matter was quieted. Hester went to bed, and about ten o'clock P. Kennedy came into the room where he was lying, bringing with him a bottle of whiskey. He asked Hester to drink with him, which the latter did several times, Kennedy occasionally using very abusive lan age toward Hester, who finally became exasperated ad, setting up out of bed, sezzed a stick of stove wood came to his death from the effect of blows received at the hands of Patrick Hester.

A KANSAS NEGRO SLAYS HIS FRIEND.

[From the Kansas City Times, June 20.] A negro man, Gus. Hemmins, originally of the Smart family, of Kansas City, was killed yesterday morning between two and three o'clock, near the stock yards, in kansas City, Kansas. He was first dis-covered by Fred Simpson, the watchman of the Mis-souri Pacific Railroad, who immediately informed Marshal Sheehan of the fact. Dr. Scott, the Coroner of Wyandotte county, held an inquest on the body, and the jury returned a verdict that Hemmins came to his death by a club in the hands of some unknown person A white woman, of a very low character, appeared at

A white woman, of a very low character, amocared at the inquest, who claimed so be his wife, and said that they were married at St. Joe, and said that she had seen him have some bills of the denomination of $20 the day before. She was kept in custody, and in the alternoon made a tull confession that she and a colored man had committed the nurder. They were both lodged in jail at Wyandotte by the Marshal.

It appears that the white woman had been cohabiting with the negro Hemmins as his wife, but she had left him and gone to live with Henderson. This led to jealousy and finally to nurder. All three of the party had been drinking in a saloon in West Kansas City on Tuesday night, and Hemmins had went out for a walk with the woman, when Henderson waylaid them and clubbed Hemmins to death. This is a terrible outrage, and one that must not pass without the majesty of the law being juliy vindicated. Out of ten or twice murder cases within the memory of the writer, all of which have occurred in and near this city within a lew years past, none of the criminals have been convicted.

THE PEMBROKE (N. Y.) MURDERER, QUACKEN BUSH, FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

[From the Rochester Express.] The trial of James M. Quackenbesh for one of th most beinous crimes ever committed in this county came in at the June term of the Circuit Court now in session, Judge Charles Daniels presiding, Wednesday morning Messrs. John Beckley and Myron H. Peck, Jr., appearing for the prisoner, and A. Fitch Bissell,

The crime for which the prisoner now awaits sentene consisted of the commission of an outrage upon the person of Mrs. Saran Norton, an old lady, seventy-six years old, in the early part of December last, from the effects of which she died a day or two later. The deed was committed in the village of Indian Falls, in the town of Pembroke, about fourteen miles west of here, the particulars are so disgusting that your readers will be indebted to the writer for not giving them.

The evidence in this case was purely circumstantial, but so conclusive that the jury had no hesitancy in bringing in a verdict of guilty. The principal points brought in the prosecution were these:—Blood was found on his underclotting and pants, for the appearance of which he gave no answer but what was clearly proved faise by other witnesses. On the evening of the night on which the crime was committed he was at the hotel in the village of Indian Falis, and while there inquired explicitly as to whether this Birs. Notion had any person living with her—sons or daugnters, or any one who would be likely to interfere with him in the accomplishment of his hellish design. Also, that on the night in question he came into the house about one o'clock A. M., and upon being questioned by different parties as to where he had been gave many contradictory answers. The description of the person who committed the crime, as given by Mrs. Norton on her death bed, answers to that of Quankenbush very truly.

The prisoner is about twenty-eight or thirty years of age, quite tail and well built, has dark hair, gray eyes and high check bones, and is much better in looks and appearance than the average criminal. He came to Indian Falls last Soptember, from the eastern part of the State and hired out as a farm hand and was very well liked by his employer. He has not at any time since his condinement in the county jail or during his trial, seemed to realize the awfoll position in which he is placed, often smining and joking during the wost conclusive of the testimony. He received the verdict of the jury with the utmost indifference. He will be sentenced Saturday morning.

MURDERER SENTENCED.

BATAVIA, N. Y., June 24, 1876. Thomas B. Quackenbush, who committed an out-rage upon Mrs. Sarah Norton, seventy-six years old, near Indian Falls, last December, and from the feets of which she died, was on Thursday last found guilty of murder in the first degree, and was sentenced this afterneon by Circuit Judge Daniels to be hanged on the 11th August next.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TRAIN.

An attempt was made on Friday afternoon to throw a train off the track of the Copey Island and Bath Railroad. About ten minutes after three o'clock a dummy engine and one car, in which were seated forty passengers, was approaching Ovingion avenue crossing when the engineer, Isaac Ring, observed a party of boys running from the track toward the woods. He immediately suspected that they were up to some mischief, and putting down the brakes reversed the engine, which was going at a high rate of speed. A severe shock, however, followed berate of speed. A severe shock, however, followed tefore the train stopped. The cowcatcher had struck a heavy piece of timber sixteen inches in width, nine feet long and four inches thick, spinters from which wounded several of the passengers. The fireman

HANG OUT YOUR FLAGS.

During the past week or two the dealers in flags have complained bitterly that they have been obliged by the Perm.t Bureau, of which Mr. Hart is the official head, Permit Sureau, of which Mr. Hart is the omitian need, to take out permits to display flags in front of their stores. It was even charged by some that the inspectors of the bureau had notified everybody flying a flag from his housetop or first story windows that he was intringing upon the permit ordinance and would have to pay $1 tax for every flag displayed. In order to ascertain the truth about the matter a Herald reporter yesterday called upon Mr. Hart and asked reporter yesterday called upon Mr. Hart and asked if it were true that exhibitions of patriotism in the flag flying line were subject to municipal tax. Mr. Hart, in reply, denied that any orders had been issued by him compelling persons who displayed flags at their houses to pay the permit houses. He says that the dealers in flags display them by the dozens over the sidewalks as an attraction to bayers, and flags thus displayed are regarded by the bureau as business signs, and the dealers are required to pay $1 for a permit. He adds that many storckeepers, taking advantage of the flag mania, put placarus relating to their business on flags which they ang over their doorways. These, he says, come under the "sign" provision of the ordinance, and the dealers must pay the usual permit fee. "People," said he, "who want to fly flags at their doors or housetons are, of course, not troubled by the inspectors; but men in business who make use of flags to advertise their business must pay for the privilege just the same as though they hung a sign over their doors."

A POINT IN QUESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HEBALD:-Having been present at the Centennial opening, I could not but notice the very complete display made of flag decorations throughout the entire city, and the the suggestion whether it would not be a much better the suggestion whether it would not be a much better plan in every way for us, instead of spending such large amounts upon fireworks, to invest the same money in bunning, &c., thus affording ourselves and children something more substantial than the mere gratification of the moment. The writer is not in any way connected with the sale or manufacture of the article alluded to, but only wishes to express his conviction that the Oriental method of holiday celebration should now make way for something more worthy of our civilization. A short time past a Philadelphian remarked to me that they have more patriotism in one month than we possess in the tweive, Now, can we not show to the nation upon the eventful day so soon occurring that New York has a large, even if latent, supply of the love of country to draw upon?

A NEW YORKER.

CENTENNIAL HOLIDAY.

The tobacco merchants and brokers have agreed to ijourn business from Saturday evening, July 1, till the following Wednesday morning. The contract is signed by J. S. Gaus, Son & Co.; M. Rader & Son, C. F. Fischer by J. S. Gaus, Son & Co.; al. hador & Son, C. F. Fischer & Brother, Fox, Dills & Co., and many other representative houses. A similar paper is being signed by the leading sugar and colice brokers and refiners of Wall street and the merchants down town have very generally agreed to close their respective places of business (2000) Saturday, July 1, till the following Wednesday.

THE WESTCHESTER FIRE.

The residents of Woodlawn Washingtonville, Mount Vernon and West Mount Vernon were much alarmed soon after eight o'clock on Friday evening by four ex. plosions, the first one of which resembled the discharge of a cannon, and was followed by three others of less force. It was soon discovered that the Jupiter powder factory, near Woodlawn station, was on fire.

fire are of a suspicious character. On Tuesday last Constable Watts, of Mount Vernon, took possession of constable Watts, of Mount Vernon, took possession of the factory by virtue of a chattel mortgage on the machinery, fixtures, stock, horses, wagons, &c., which he advertised to sell on the 28th inst. On Thursday the foreman of the works obtained permission frem Constable Watts to use a horse and wagon belonging to the proprietors, and on returning them to the promises yesterlay morning told Constable Watts that there was another horse and wagon in Morrisania which be might seize also. The constable proceeded at once to Morrisania to look after the other horse, wagon and harness, which, however, he failed to find, and during his absence 650 pounds of Jupiter powder, which he had seized, were removed from the premises and the fire occurred. A lady passenger by the Harlem Railroad left the train at Woodlawn and walked thence to Washingtonville, and as she passed near the factory saw a man with a heavy gray beard leaving the premises. Before she had gone more than two blocks further she heard the reports, and on looking back saw flames tissing from the building. Washington Eugline Company No. 1, of Mount Vernon, repaired to the scene and did good service; but all the other companies kept at a respectful distance. Hadthe 650 pounds of Jupiter powder not been removed, there would have been a terrible explosion. There were two mortgages on the building, one for $2,000 held by F. Grote & Co., of New York, and another for $1,000 held by William H. Pomberton, of Mount Vernon. It was insured for $2,200. The building, a farm structure about seventy-live feet long by forty wide, was estimated to be worth about $4,000.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

NORMAL COLLEGE ALUMNÆ.

The Associate Alumnæ of the Normal College held their fifth annual reunion yesterday afternoon, in the chapol of the college. Besides the members of the organization and the graduates of this year there were present a great many friends of both parties. President Hunter, President Wood and Mr. Fuller, of the Normal College Committee, with soveral professors of the college, occupied seats upon the platform. Jennie B. Merrill, president of the association, delivered a short, well written address. Ada A. Brennan followed with a plane sole sung by Mary Zetzman, a graduate of last June. Henrietta Japhs, in her recitation, showed careful preparation and study. The plane sole by Cecilia Basil was listened to with pleasure. The recitation of a scene NORMAL COLLEGE ALUMNE. was listened to with pleasure. The recitation of a scene from "As You Like It," by Minnio E. Mason, was decidedly one of the best things upon the programme. The next in order was a solo for the voice by Ella Freeborn. Marguerite Merington, another WORCESTER, Mass, June 22, 1876. The exercises incident to the Thirty-third Annual Commencement of the College of the Holy Cross, in this city, were appropriately observed to-day in the pres-ence of a large and distinguished audience. This insti-tution, it should be remarked, is the chief Catholic col-lege in the East, and during the long period of its ex-istence thas graduated many of the now leading Cath-olic clergymen of the country. The spacious buildings, which are situated on an eminence commanding the country for miles around, were erected nearly forty years ago and in 1843 the college was founded by Benedict Joseph Fenwick, then Bishop of Boston, and a few years later the institution was endowed by the State with all the authority and privileges enjoyed by the other Massachusetts colleges.

Among those present at the exercises to-day were Gov ernor Rice and staff, who were received and enter-tained by Rev. Mr. O'Hagan, President of the college, and of the prominent Catholics who participated were Bishops O'Riley, of Springfield, and Healey, of Port-land, Me. The buildings generally and the exhibition land, Me. The buildings generally and the exhibition hall in particular were handsomely decorated, and the exercises were frequently enlivened by the music of one of Worcester's Brest bands.

The commencement exercises.

The commencement exercises were characterized by superior judgment all through, and were of such striking interest as to call forth frequent bursts of hearty applause from the large number who were assembled to listen. One of the most timely productions was a dissertation by Thomas F. Butler on the subject of "The Nations at the Centennial," and this in turn was followed by Daniel N. Crowley on "The Trials of Great Minds," and a dissertation on "Emulation" by John O'Dowd. The valedictory address, by John J. McCoy, was a touching effort cloquently and effectively delivered.

The following honorary degrees were then conferred:—

Award of Prizes by Governor Rick.

The Governor was called upon to award the prizes to such of the students as had distinguished themselves in their respective classes, and following the distribution His Excellency indulged in a brief and happy address. He expressed pleasure at what he had observed in the prodeiency of the college, and remarked that it was fortunate that all were happily united in the one idea that education is requisite and useful. To the graduates he addressed wholesome words of advice for future guidance, and in concluding congranulated the President of the college and his associates upon the manifest success of the institution under their charge.

Bishop Healey also made a brief address, after which the Governor and other invited guests dinned with the officers of the college and begested inneer their charge.

SENDING CHILDREN WEST.

Yestorday the writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Neilson, of the Brooklyn City Court, came up for argument in the case of Mrs. Annie Hope, who procured the writ against the "Home for Destitute Children" to compel the managers of that institution to produce her four children before the Court. It was shown that in November last the mother, who was deserted by her husband, was compelled to place the children with the Commissioners of Charities of Kings county. The latter board transferred the little ones to the institution named. On May 23 they were sent to the West by the managers of the Home, without consulting the mother. In answer to the writ Mrs. Susan C. Smith, first directress of the "Home for Destitute Children," made affidavit which was read in court, setting forth that Mrs. Hope was a dissolute woman and was not fit to be custodian of her offspring; that the petitioner was an inebriate and had been in the Pentitioner was an Inebriate and had been in the Pentitioner was an abouse of ill-fame in New York, and that the children, William, Bertha, Lizzie and Frederick, whose ages are from six to fourtieen years, are boarding with families in Columbia, Boone county. ## A BATHING HOUSE RUN INTO.

The Coney Island boat, Eliza Hancock, while trying to make her dock, at the foot of North Seventh street, Williamsburg, collided with the free swimming both located in the slip and damaged it to the extent of $300. The accident does not prevent its use, however.

THE GLENDENNING SCANDAL.

Letters were received in Jersey City yesterday, by some of the members of the Westminster Presbyterian church, from members of the Presbytery at Peoria, Ill., church, from members of the Presbytery at Peoris, Ill., setting forth the action of that body in relation to the Rev. John S. Glendeuning, now occupying the pulpit at Henry in defiance of the Presbytery. Resolutions were adopted requesting the rebellious elders and members of the church at Henry who sustained Glendenning to vacate their offices in the seasion of that church and that a meeting of the church be neld on the 9th of July for the purpose of electing elders who would carry out the orders of the Presbytery in relation to the Glendenning case. It was also ordered that a memorandum be sent to the Jersey City Presbytery setting iorith the rebellious and defiant conduct of Glendenning and tailling upon it to take prompt action in the premises. The letters of recommendation given to the deposed paster of the church of the scandal in Jersey City will now probably be revoked. His adherents in Jersey City have provided for the emergency, and alsw office has been rented for him in the neighborhood of the county Court House on the Heights.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

In the matter of the second Broadway widening, on which William Wood is one of the commissioners, Comptroller Green has requested the Counsel to the Corporation to take whatever measures may be necessary to have the city relieved from the judgment obtained against it for services of the commissioners, surveyors, &c., amounting to $87,830 91. The costs surveyors, &c., amounting to $57,830 91. The costs claimed in the first proceeding for widening Broadway are $195,632 40, which Comptroller Green has refused to pay, and suit has been commenced against the city. Comptroller Green has approved the surectes on the proposal of David P. Arnold for furnishing and delivering fresh meat to the several institutions under charge of the Department of Public Charities and Correction, from May 22 to December 31, 1876. The rates contained in the new contract are more advantageous to the city than those in the previous one, the price being six cents per pound.

The Corporation Counsel has been requested by the Comptroller to defend the action of Algerman S, Sulfitvan to recover $1.166 66 deducted from his salary of $10,000 as Assistant District Attorney in 1871. The reduction was made by the Board of Apportionment on all city salaries. Mr. Green claims that Mr. Sullivan was consequently paid all he was entitled to under the action of the Board.

AN ALLEGED | MBEZZLER.

Yesterday at noon Charles Chamberlain, member of the Board of Education from the First ward of Hobo-ken, was arrested by Detective Gailagher, of that place. The charge against Chamberlain is preferred by ex-Assemblyman John O'Netll, President of the Trustees of the Widows and Orphans' Fund of the Hoboken Fire Department Chamberlain was reasurer of the above fund till May last, when Mr. John Logan was above fund till May last, when Mr. John Logan was elected his successor. An investigation of Chamber-lain's accounts showed that he was $828 short. On the 15th inst, the Secretary of State of New Jersey, believing that Chamberlain was still treasurer, sont him $840, being the amount due the fund for taxes collected on the premium of the insurance compalies. He then made good the first deficiency of $825, but the other amount still remains due. He was held by Recorder Bohnstedt in $1,500 ball to appear for trial.

Patrick Hayes, of New York, paid a visit to his friend Denis Dunn, of Williamsburg, on Friday even-ing, at the residence of the latter, No. 461 Second and numerous quarts of beer were sent for and drank in his bonor. About midnight intoxication prevailed among the company. At last Dunn and Hayes became engaged in a hand-to-hand fight, the various persons engaged in a hand-to-hand light, the various persons present joining in one after another until a general row disturbed the peace of the neighborhood. Hayes, not satisfied with whipping Dunn with his fists, stooped over him and bit off a piece of his nose, and then, satisfied, left the premises and started for New York. After he had been gone ten or fitteen minutes the company discovered what he had done. Dunn was taken to the hospital, but Hayes has not yet been arrested.

BURGLARY IN BEAVER STREET.

Early yesterday morning an unoccupied building at No. 13 Beaver street, was broken into by burglars who ascended to the roof. GLENWOOD CEMETERY.

New York, June 23, 1876.

To the Editor of the Herald:—
Your editorial of Sunday last, relative to an article on Greenwood Cemetery in the same issue, entitled, on Greenwood Cemetery in the same issue, entitled, on the Political Hyona, was a fitting rebuke to the sharks who have designs upon the reserve fund. It hardly seems possible that there should be a parallel case in the Senate of the United States. February 21, 1876, Senater Sherman offered a bill (see Senate, 475) to amend the charter of Gleuwood Cemetery, in the District of Columbia, so obviously uncenstitutional that the committee to which it was referred reported it back adversely. One of the provisions of the bill was denying the company the rights of any Court whatever.

Within a few days thereafter another bill (see Senate, 314) was presented to repeal the charter, which is also unconstitutional, being expendence, which is also unconstitutional, being expendence, which is also were a solemn requiem mass will be celebrated for the repose of ber soul, and from thence to Calvary Cemetery, are most respectfully invited to attend the funeral, from his late residence, No. 271 Macon st., Brooklyn, on Mon day evening, 24th inst. McCaptery.—Ju District of Columbia, so obviously unconstitutional that the committee to which it was referred reported it back adversely. One of the provisions of the bill was denying the company the rights of any Court whatever.

Within a few days thereafter another bill (see Senate, 914) was presented to repeal the charter, which is also unconstitutional, being ex post facto.

Cannot a lot holder, even if he is a brother-in-law of Senator Sherman, be compelled to pay a just debt without a raid being made upon the rights of the company, or is this a new form of blackmail.
